

SHEVIN MCCULLOUGH BRIEF BIO

Co-Founder, Executive Writer & Actor

Shevin McCullough was the VP of teammate development for Avesta, a Tampa-based multifamily real estate investment and management company. Following a profound spiritual encounter on an airplane during a business trip – he felt that God had called him to be the personality for a Christian children’s show – Shevin left the real estate business to join his longtime friend Rob Reynolds at Cross Boss Media in September of 2018. Shevin is the jack of all trades – writer, lead talent and music producer – for Studio 3:16, a Christian episodic TV series for kids. He is the star and hero of the show, a good-natured yet misguided recording artist whose task is to create and release a song to explain the Sunday Gospel passage through the guidance of friends and humorously providential missteps. He has a musical background, having recorded two Christian hip-hop albums, “It’s Time” and “Stories of the Saints,” both in 2020. The Isley Brothers, Stevie Wonder, the Four Tops and the Manhattans are some of his biggest musical influences. Shevin, a Catholic convert, graduated from Franciscan University of Steubenville with a BA in marketing. He has been married to his wife, Shirley, since 2016, and they have one son.

Shevin performed on the main stage at World Youth Day in Lisbon, Portugal, this past summer, alongside Fr. Rob Galea from Australia.
